CLOSE OF THE FAIR.

Thursday Was the Banner Day For the Sale of Tickets.

10,000 PAID FOR ADMISSION.

Masters of the New York and Pennsylvania State Granges Delivered Addresses Wednesday—Secretary Critchfield Friday—The Races.

Wednesday of last week was Grange day at the fair. The weather was ideal and there was an attendance of about 4,000 which is large for Wednesday. The program consisted of the public wedding, the addresses by W. F. Hill, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange and Hon. E. B. Norris, master of the New York State Grange, the 2:40 and 2:25 class in the horse races and the acrobatic exhibition by Jacoby and Klase.

The Addresses.

The speeches were made from the platform next the judges' stand. A. T. Lilley, of LeRoy, one of the most prominent grangers in this section, introduced the speakers. Mr. Hill spoke of the great progress that the grange was making in this state and prophesied an increase in membership of 10,000 within the present year. The grange is in a state of harmony and fraternity and its work is of far reaching influence and beneficence.

Mr. Hill mentioned rural delivery of mail as a great disideratum. He then discussed the world's congress held in the city of Rome, Italy, and which the speaker attended as a representative from this country. Its purpose was the mutual advantage of the agricultural class all over the world. It will inaugurate a system by which its members will be enabled to receive reliable crop reports from each country that the others may know in what there is an over production and in what the supply will fall short of the demand.

Mr. Hill thought that the farmer should be careful about sending too much of his money abroad into life insurance and mining investments, which the speaker said gave the trusts the weapon with which the trust could wage war on the farmer. He suggested keeping money at home and placing it where it will upbuild local industries. He gave an entertaining address which was heartily applauded.

Mr. Norris's Remarks.

Mr. Norris also made an excellent impression. He complimented the association on the magnificent grounds that it has for its agricultural exhibitions and admired its great natural beauty of location. He told of the things with which make good fairs, good weather, good crowds and people interested in the entries of their products and stock. He thought that Grange day ought to be made a great day and urged the farmers to attend on that day each year until it becomes recognized as one of the big days of the fair. He advocated organization for the farmer and their membership in the grange that they might mutually understand questions that would come up for solution. He condemned graft in New York insurance and also that in Philadelphia politics but he said that this was not because every farmer was honest. Organization would make the other fellow be honest. Mr. Norris said that there was a great chance for money to be saved in the conduct of county offices by paying salaries instead of fees and told of the experience of his home county in that respect.

During the latter part of Mr. Norris's speech parties in the grand stand became so eager for the races that they forgot to give Mr. Norris the courtesy that he deserved, and began to clap their hands and stamp their feet. Some of the Grangers were quite bitter in their condemnation of the threatened interruption of Mr. Norris's remarks.

Mr. Hill and Mr. Norris with Master E. E. Chubbuck of the Orwell grange and Mrs. Chubbuck were entertained at dinner by Wysauking grange, No. 58, the first grange organized in Bradford county.

The Races.

The races were late in starting but were run off in good style, the fact that both were won in three straight heats making the end come at about 4:45 o'clock. Hon. R. S. Edmiston started the 2:40 race and J. G. Pratt the 2:25 class. The judges and timers were B. F. Myer, E. W. Elwell, and W. G. Tracy of Towanda, Elmer Atwood of LeRaysville, and Dr. Rischell of Athens. There were only three starters in each race but the contests were much better than would be expected. The heats resulted as follows:

Thursday's Big Crowd.

Officials of the Bradford County Agricultural society state that Thursday day's sale of admission tickets was the largest of any one day in the history of the society. Very nearly 10,000 tickets were sold, which make 13,000 as the total attendance a most conservative estimate.

The weather was typical fair weather, a cool, foggy morning turning off into a hot, sunshiny day. The dust, as usual, was something frightful. The crowd was on the grounds early. At 10 o'clock the central part of the grounds was a solid mass of people, the buildings were full and still the people came in a continuous stream of carriages with never a let up until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The races were quickly decided, and as that was all the attraction for the afternoon except the acrobatic work of Jacoby and Klase, the crowd began to leave before 4 o'clock.

The Races.

The 2:30 and 2:14 class races were trotted, the first going to "Direct J." owned by James Kinney of Towanda, and driven by Cocoaman, in three straight heats. It took four heats to decide the 2:14, which went to "Kit Murphy," owned by Dr. Haggerty of Scranton. "Little Charlie," James Wiltese's Sayre horse took the first heat, but not having the staying qualities had to take second place in the next three heats.

The Last Day.

There was not a large crowd Friday, less than 1,000 admission tickets being sold. In the morning Hon. N. B. Critchfield, state secretary of agriculture, gave an interesting address. Mr. Critchfield is a fine talker and made an excellent impression. He told of the early settlers in this valley after the Wyoming massacre and then discussed topics of interests to agriculture. He said that one reason why farmers had less money today than they used to have was the fact that they expended more. He spoke hopefully of the future of agriculture and gave a number of wise suggestions to agriculturists.

The races were the attraction for the afternoon and proved interesting. State Senator Robert S. Edmiston of Milan captured the first heat in the 2:35 with his Meteor, driving the horse himself in fine fashion, but in the second heat the horse caught a boot and pulled it, cutting his quarter badly. The horse was then drawn. The third heat in this race was a good one in which the pole horse, Wild Magnolia, won out after being given a bad start. While scoring in the second heat of this race, Phelta, the Monroeton horse driven by L. G. Marshall reared up and bucked, throwing Marshall out and smashing a wheel of the racing bike. Wild Magnolia won the race with DaCosta H. and Phleta dividing second and third money. Harry D., Jr., won the 2:20 in three straight heats. Mr. Griswold of Waverly acted as starter in the 2:35 class and J. G. Pratt in the 2:20.

Some Fair Notes.

Side shows were more numerous than ever, there being an even dozen of the more pretentious beside numerous cane boards, jewelry, gum, and other prize boards. The Coney Island frankfurter man, the hot corn, hot candy and hot air men were in their element and all doing business, as did the merry go round, the photograph gallery, the glass palace, the miniature zoo, the snakes from India, the mammoth fat children, the living statues and the "refined vaudeville."

August, the balloon and parachute man, wired the management from Stroudsburg that owing to injuries received a few days ago by a fall while giving his exhibition, he would be unable to fill his contract to appear here.

THE VACCINATION LAW

Health Commissioner Dixon Has Issued a Circular to Teachers.

THEY ALONE ARE RESPONSIBLE

No Action of School Board Can Supersede the Act, Which Applies to Private and Sunday Schools as Well A Compulsory Attendance Decision.

There is much agitation, especially in the rural school districts of this county, over the enforcement of the law requiring pupils of the public schools to present certificates of successful vaccination as a requisite to their admission to the schools. In some districts the teacher has complied strictly with the law; in others no attention has been paid to the matter, and in yet others the teacher has given until a certain time for all to comply with the law before refusing the unvaccinated pupil the privileges of the school. A plain statement of the case will perhaps assist both patron and teacher to come to an amicable understanding of the matter.

The Law is Plain.

First, the teacher has no option in the mater. Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania, has recently sent out a circular letter to the principals and teachers in which he quotes Section 12 of the Act of Assembly of June 18, 1895, which declares that:

"All principals or other persons in charge of schools as aforesaid, (namely, public, private, parochial, Sunday or other school) are hereby required to refuse the admission of any child to the schools under their charge or supervision, except upon a certificate signed by a physician, setting forth that such child has been successfully vaccinated, or that it has previously had smallpox."

Section 21 of the act provides that the penalty for failure, neglect or refusal to comply with, or violation of the requirement, shall for every such offense, upon conviction, be a fine or penalty of not less than $5 or more than $100, and in default of payment, imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding 60 days.

Commissioner Dixon calls particular attention to the fact that the teacher is alone directly responsible to the State or local board of health, and that no action of the board of directors can supercede the law. Patrons of the schools or teachers who desire more detailed explanation of the matter should communicate with the Department of Health at Harrisburg.

A Compulsory Attendance Decision.

A question that very naturally arises in connection with the vaccination law is, whether or not the compulsory attendance law can be enforced on such pupils as do not qualify for admission by being vaccinated. In an opinion filed on Sept. 3, 1900, Judge Fanning of this county decided that where the parents of a pupil refused to have the child vaccinated, and complied with the compulsory attendance act by sending such pupil to school (where he was refused admission) they had complied with the act and were not amenable to punishment under its provisions. In brief, that where the two acts conflict, the compulsory attendance act is rendered of no effect.

Judge Fanning holds that the vaccination law is not compulsory; that the option is left with the parent or guardion whether the child shall be vaccinated or not, subject to the penalty that if the child be not vaccinated, it shall be debarred from the privileges of the public schools. He further holds that the compulsory education law requires the parent to send the child to school; when he has done so, the requirements of the statute have been met.

The act does not require him to make the child eligible by compelling him to undergo vaccination. If the authorities refuse to admit the child for want of a certificate of vaccination, as they have a right and are bound to do, this is a complete answer to a prosecution under the compulsory education law.

All Schools Included.

The vaccination act covers all schools, and the superintendant of a Sunday school or the teacher of a kindergarten is just as liable under the law as the principal or teacher of a public school.

Plaintiff Got Verdict.

A suit before F. N. Moore of North Orwell, and A. C. Blackwell and Jonathan Terry of Towanda as arbitrators was held Friday in the arbitration room of the courthouse. Joseph J. Zurn was the plaintiff and he alleged that his horse had been injured by getting in the sluiceway on South Mountain. He claimed that Towanda township was liable. The township authorities claimed that Zurn's horse had been "nerved" and that the condition of its foot was due to that cause and not to any injury on their roads. The arbitrators gave the plaintiff a judgment of $1. This carries the costs. William Maxwell appeared for the plaintiff and Lilley & Wilson for the defendants.

MONEY AND CHECK STOLEN.

Laquin Lumberman Lost His Wad But Guilty One Is Known.

Alexander Thompson, a lumberman at Laquin, came to the fair on Thursday. He had with him $17 in cash and a check for $24. Thursday night he succumbed to the arguments of old John Barleycorn and laid down to sleep at East Towanda. Friday morning when he awoke his money and they were gone.

Soon after the Citizens bank opened on Friday morning the check was presented but payment was refused because of some apparent irregularity in the endorsement. Thompson made complaint to the police and Chief Miller and Constable Hollon made a search of the fair grounds, finally locating the man wanted at East Towanda about dark. The young fellow, who is a resident of Sayre, got away on a freight train, however.

Wyalusing Was Easy.

The Wyalusing High School foot ball team proved an easy mark for the Towanda High school eleven on Saturday afternoon at the East Side grounds, the locals winning by a score of 47 to 0. Towanda made eight touchdowns, one place kick and three goals. The officials were H. M. Turner and Charles Chamberlain. There was a small crowd present. Towanda scored almost at will and often made touchdowns in one play.

Cold storage is being successfully used to protect the seeds of the various legumes—beans, peas, etc.—from the ravages of the weevil.

One farmer writes us that the agitation on the seed corn question has done him a positive injury, for he got such good seed that his corn is too thick and is all stalks and no ears. Pretty hard to help some men.

It is generally supposed that the ravages of the corn root worm are confined to those fields which are kept continually in corn with no rotation of crop, but a friend tells us that much of his corn is injured by the pest on a field which had previously to this year been continuously in blue grass for a period of seventeen years.

Prospects now point to the securing of one of the best matured crops of corn harvested for many years. The season has been very favorable, a hot August proving the salvation of the crop. The quality of the corn will be of the best, and, being well matured, it will naturally have a greater feeding value than when the frost catches it in an immature stage.

We really wish that quail were no better eating than the crow, and then it might be possible for us to keep a stock of these pretty and most useful birds around our farms. As it is, if the little fellows survive an arctic winter and hatch out a good brood and dodge the skunks and the hawks, some miserable pot hunter will annihilate the whole bunch at one pot shot as they are huddled under a bush, by the time winter comes, and then go off and brag how many he killed at one shot. The Chinese and Japs do far better than we, for they protect their game birds, which become almost as tame as domestic fowls.

We watched an old man the other day trying to repair the picket fence which inclosed his garden. He must have been very old, for he could not take a step without the aid of his cane and his hand trembled so that he could hardly hold the hammer and his efforts to drive a nail were painful to see. Noting him at work in his feeble and almost useless way we were impressed with the fact that man hates to give up working, and it is well it is so, for work is a panacea for more of life's troubles than any other thing, and this old man fixing this fence suggested how well it is for us all to keep doing something to make the world better, even if it has to be done with painful effort and trembling hands.

In considering the varied things which may be rightly credited to the administration of our worthy president we incline to think that so far as this country is concerned the legislation providing for the reclamation of the desert by means of irrigation will in the end prove to be the most far reaching and beneficial. As the several irrigation projects now under way are sized up, it appears that an empire of the most fertile land on earth is by means of irrigation to be made available as homes for the American people. We have lately inspected a line of agricultural products from some of the irrigated farms of Wyoming, and these samples, at least, so far eclipse similar products of the nonirrigated sections that what we have been wont to term the best farm land on the continent is simply outclassed.

When an animal, or, for that matter, a man, is carefully trained for the doing of some particular kind of work it is noticeable that his progeny will always take more readily to that particular kind of work than the progeny of individuals not so trained. It is cultivating this tendency which has resulted in giving us some of the most valuable types of animals we have. The St. Bernard dog because of this ancestral training needs little effort to make him the searcher and rescuer of lost travelers in mountain regions; the young hound readily takes to the track of the rabbit or deer, the setter to the trail of the winged wild fowl, the shepherd dog to the care and herding of the flock of sheep. Following this law has given us the many types of fancy pigeons and poultry, and the same rule worked to its ultimate end has given us all our improved breeds of domestic animals.

Small gas plants for the use of our smaller towns are rapidly coming into use, affording a cheap fuel supply and means of illumination. They are made possible by the use of what is known as gas oil, a grade of kerosene oil which is the by product of the oil refineries which is worthless for illuminating purposes and not heavy enough for a lubricating oil, which, being very cheap, can be used by means of a gas retort to furnish a gas of excellent quality for lighting and heating purposes. The owner of such a plant in a town of 3,000 people told us recently that he would rather have 250 patrons for such a plant than to own the national bank of the town, so far as assured profits were concerned. In this case the gas was furnished at $1.50 per 1,000 feet, while because of the superior heating and lighting quality of such oil gas was equivalent to ordinary gas at $1 per 1,000 feet.

It is corn cutting time. The wise man will cut up the corn and sell his hay; the other fellow will feed his hay and let 30 per cent of the value of his corn crop go to waste in the field.

The first bale of new crop of cotton sold lately at the New Orleans market for 30 cents per pound. The new crop seems good for 10 cents, which is a very profitable price.

The dinner pails of the laboring men of the United States have never been filled fuller or with better food than at the present time.

We note that one make of farm separators is advertised as low as $25. Cheap as this seems to be, it is probably not the best kind to invest in after all.

It is a good thing to keep in mind that the very best way to insure good seed corn—corn which will surely grow strong and thrifty next year—is to gather it during the fore part of October before the frost has touched it and then dry it out and keep it where the frost will not touch it until next spring. This plan will make testing the corn unnecessary.

Here is a fertilizer item which will bear often repeating: Every load of barnyard manure put on the land is worth not less than $1 to the man who does it. A rotation of clover of two years is worth in fertilizing value as much as ten big loads of manure to the acre, and the man who sows it has a profitable crop while doing it besides. If one has yellow corn on the hills, it means that the land is calling for clover or manure and perhaps both.

The feeders of beef cattle will this winter be able to get corn around 30 or 35 cents; the price of beef next summer is likely to be about the same as this—from $4 for the poorest to $6.50 for the best. On this basis feeders should be bought around $3.25 to insure a profitable winter's feeding. It is true that roughage—hay, straw and stalks—will be cheaper this winter than usual, being in great abundance. Still we would not want to pay over $3 for feeders, expecting to come out ahead in the deal.

There never has been a time in our recollection when the prices of all commodities maintained a more harmonious relation to each other than at present. No commodity is excessively high in price, none selling below the cost of production, and, what is more, prices for commodities bear a fair and equitable relation to the wages paid to labor. While perhaps some of our economic conditions might be bettered, it is well to remember how very easily they might be made worse, for there is no country on earth where the common people are better fed, better clothed or better housed than in America.

Whenever the farmers of any community organize a co-operative society for the purpose of shipping their own grain and other farm produce they invariably run up against a snag when they try to secure a site for an elevator on the railway grounds, the roads not taking kindly to this new method of doing business and doing all in their power to protect the owners of elevators already built. Passing the question of the wisdom or economy of this co-operative method of handling farm products, we do not think the roads have any moral right to discriminate in favor of any man or set of men and that the privileges associated with the use of the roads should be open to all alike and that without question or debate. The people gave the corporations their valuable rights and franchises and in many cases helped to construct the roads themselves, and it is simple equity that there should be no discrimination practiced by them.

We noted the difference lately between two fields of corn—one growing on a clover sod turned over a year ago, the other, immediately adjoining, planted on a field which had been cropped with small grain for several successive years. One was a rich, dark green and good for sixty bushels per acre if not more, the other was yellow, feeble and everywhere lacking in thrift and vigor and cannot possibly produce over twenty-five bushels of corn to the acre. Now it was giving the land a rotation in clover, that fertilizing and soil fitting work which the clover plant does for the land, which made all the difference between these two crops. Many men do not understand this important fact and never use clover, and they never raise as good crops as their neighbors who do. Every 160 acre farm has back and remote fields which are too distant to be handily reached with the manure spreader, and for all such fields clover is the best and cheapest fertilizer possible to use.

The mass of men are of the average sort; the most of the crops raised are of the average yield; the quality of most of our domestic animals is of the average grade. Only a very few farmers aspire to get out of the rut of the average way of doing things, being satisfied with doing that well. The successful men in any line of business are those who are dissatisfied with the schedule of average work and results and aspire to something better. In every community may be found some man who aims to secure more than average crops. His corn will yield from sixty to seventy bushels per acre and other crops in proportion, and he counts it as a pleasure to do the work necessary to secure such a yield. He also wants better than an average grade of stock on his place and is willing to spend the money needed to secure it. The real field for ambition lies directly connected with this trying to do better than the average not only on the farm, but in all other lines of human effort and endeavor. Young man, do not be content to be just an average man or do average work. There is something bigger and better in sight if you will only reach for it.

JAPS AS FARM HANDS.

A friend writes from an eastern state inquiring whether it is possible to secure the importation of the Japanese laborer as a farm hand and wants to know whether, if he could be obtained for this purpose, he would be a success. From what we know of these people we should regard them as well adapted for work on our American farms. They are trained along agricultural lines from their youth and no people on earth are making a closer study of how to make a small tract of land yield a large amount of food. Then as a race they are very fond of the soil, its cereal, fruit and flower production. They are extremely economical, will never waste anything if they can possibly help it and would prove the best of help wherever farming was carried on in an extensive manner, such as gardening, fruit raising and dairying. The Japanese government has not favored the emigration of its citizens heretofore, perhaps having in mind the need of all able-bodied men in connection with its late conflict with Russia. Now that the war is over it is possible that these restrictions may be removed and emigration be at least permitted, if not encouraged. The conditions in Japan for the common laborer are such that it would seem easy to induce him to come to this country if he could, for he there gets but $4 per month and has to board himself out of that. The north and northwest are badly handicapped today in their agricultural development for want of reliable help, the class of immigrants which are now coming from Europe being almost entirely worthless as farm hands. We believe that the importation of one or two hundred thousand Japs to be set to work on our farms would be a great thing, not only for the Japs themselves, but more so for the owners of our American farms, which are not more than half worked for want of reliable help. The Japanese have proved themselves to be a much better breed of humanity than we had ever believed before, and it is probably true that there exists toward them none of the prejudice which attaches to the Chinese.

ALFALFA FOR HOGS.

We are in receipt of two or three inquiries as to whether it is possible to grow alfalfa profitably in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois and Iowa. The facts go to show that alfalfa can be grown in any of the states named on any rich, well drained soils and that it will stand the winter weather of that region. It will not, however, take the place of clover, as it does not work in well with any ordinary course of crop rotation, and it will always be found that the first cutting, which comes in June, will be exceedingly hard to cure for hay. In the territory referred to its chief use will be for a hog pasture, and in this capacity it will prove simply invaluable, for it furnishes the hogs of the corn belt region just the thing which is needed to balance their rations, the hog which has the run of an alfalfa pasture being always thrifty, well boned, healthy. We most unhesitatingly advise every man who makes a business of raising hogs to make every effort to get a five or ten acre alfalfa pasture for them. Five acres will carry fifty hogs and, besides, give two cuttings of hay after July. The many experiments which have been made during the past two years show that a stand can be secured more surely when the seed is sown in August on well fertilized and well prepared land than when sown in the spring. Alfalfa pasture for sheep, horses and cattle is not a good thing, as there is danger of bloat. Alfalfa hay, however, makes a very fine winter ration for the dairy cow, the hay when well cured being worth pound for pound about as much as bran. The many small fields of alfalfa which have been sown in Iowa the past two years are nearly all a great success.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE CORN CROP

A number of leading agricultural papers are speculating as to what shall be done with the corn crop of 1905, assuming that it is to be a very large one and consequently low in price. It looks to us as though if the crop of 2,350,000,000 bushels of 1904, which was one of the largest crops ever produced, has disappeared at about 40 cents a bushel, leaving empty corn cribs all through the corn belt, there is small need to worry as to what will become of the crop of the present year, which bids fair to be but little, if any, larger than that of last year. The fact is the uses for the corn crop have been so multiplied and the cost of transportation so lowered compared with what it was twenty-five years ago that no one need be in the least worried as to the demand for all the corn we can or ever will raise. There is a permanent export demand for corn on a basis of living prices to the producer, or at 20 to 25 cents a bushel at primary markets. But the real market for our big crops of corn is right at home and is very easily absorbed by the men who are making the beef, the pork, the butter, the poultry and other food products, and there is to be a good demand for all these products, for the American workingman has ample employment at good wages, and when he has work and good pay he is always a good eater. No need to worry about the corn crop, for it is not going to be as big as some crop boomers try to make it, and every bushel is wanted. The real thing to worry over is the fact that the average yield of corn per acre is not one-half what it should and might be.

A Floating Hospital.

The health department of New York will soon be in possession of a luxurious boat intended for a floating hospital. It will be fitted up with everything the sick can require and will carry about 100 patients. In case of an epidemic the number can be doubled without serious crowding. There will be wards for any kind of contagious disease, constructed so as to be isolated when necessary. The boat will cost some $70,000 and is built either for shallow or deep water.

WELLS.

Quite a comical sensation was aroused here last Friday night when a neighbor cut a bee tree, found another neighbor some two years ago and was marked by the finder's name in another near neighbor's woods. After the tree fell the first finder who was on guard, "swooped in" and gathered up about 100 pounds of nice honey while those who cut the large tree down ran in hiding in the forest. Query: Who will settle the bill? Who owned the honey and who will have to go to jail, for how long and how much?

Charles Besley and Finley Ferren, who went West last Spring and worked some months for Frank Seelye at Spring Valley, Minn., have returned home. The boys left Spring Valley for the East on Aug. 17, with a four horse team of Western "burros," or ponies, and wagon fitted up, and drove the entire distance, camping out as they came. They did not put up at any house or sleep in any other bed other than their own the entire trip. They saw some great sights and relate some amusing stories about the country and customs of the people. Their expense for board, horse fare and all was about $38 all told. Occasionally chickens roosted quite close to the road or flew into the wagon by mistake and the like. Messers Besley and Ferren waxed fat and greatly enjoyed their overland trip but emphatically pronounce Pennsylvania and its pople the best in the union. They arrived Sept. 25 about a thirty-nine days' trip of over 1,200 miles.

Mrs. George N. Merithew of Hawes Street, says: "In the winter of 1896 I was taken with exceedingly sharp pains in my back and was unable to do the ordinary affairs of the house. When the attack was at its height our attention was called to the advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills. Knowing that the trouble was caused by imperfect action of the kidneys a box of the remedy was procured for me at Dr. H. C. Porter & Son's drug store on Main street. I took them as directed. After a few days the pain in my back which had been severe disappeared and I felt better in every way. KNOX POINTS THE WAY

SHOULD STAND BY PARTY.

Best Way to Maintain National Republican Supremacy Is to Maintain Supremacy of Party Within the States, Says the Senator.

United States Senator Philander C. Knox has emphasized the importance of Republican success in Pennsylvania this fall in a strong public interview referring to the political situation in the Keystone State.

Without any authority whatever some of the Lincoln Party adherents have been circulating reports that members of President Roosevelt's cabinet were in sympathy with their independent canvass, but it can be positively stated that the national administration is as eager for a great Republican victory in Pennsylvania this fall, as it is desirous of Republican success throughout the country.

Senator Philander C. Knox.

President Roosevelt wants a Republican congress elected next year to insure the carrying out of his policies and he is looking to Pennsylvania to furnish a big Republican delegation to the next congress. Senator Knox has frequent talks with the president and fully understands his views on this subject.

This is what Senator Knox has to say on the political situation and he said it with manifest candor and earnestness.

"I will vote the entire Republican state ticket in November and I believe it will be elected."

"I believe in electing Republicans to the state offices and that the Republican party should then see that they administer the offices faithfully and well.

"I believe the best way to maintain national Republican supremacy is to maintain the supremacy of the party within the state and to make the state's influence proportionate to its greatness, is in my judgment, to have the party meet the just and reasonable demands of the people for wise legislation and honest administration.

"I am satisfied that this is the view of the great majority of Pennsylvanians, and a great majority of Pennsylvanians are Republicans."

J. D. Rockefeller Makes Good.

New York, Oct. 3.—Ten million dollars in eight checks was turned over to the general education board by John D. Rockefeller through his representative, F. T. Gates. This great sum, which Mr. Rockefeller agreed on June 30 to give to the board for purposes of higher education, will now be invested at the discretion of the trustees. The income, it is estimated, will amount to at least $500,000 annually.

Chewed Up by a Lion.

Gilman, Ill., Oct. 3.—Miss Aimee Blondel, a lion tamer, was attacked and terribly mutilated during a performance of a circus here by the trick lion Roosevelt. It is thought Miss Blondel will die. She was only saved from immediate death in the cage by the bullets of a troop of United States cavalrymen traveling with the circus, who poured a volley into the body of the lion.

"Social Democratic" an Infringement.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The court of appeals reversed the lower courts and sustained the objections made by John S. McEwan against the certificates of nomination filed by the Social Democratic party last fall for the state election. The objections were based on the allegation that the name "Social Democratic" infringed upon the title rights of the Democratic party.

DIED IN "AMERICAN DUEL."

Berlin Suicide the Result of a Kiss Refused In America.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—Police officers who were summoned by Mrs. Theobald von Bovens, whose husband had locked himself in a room of their apartment and would not open the door, broke it down and found him dead. By his side was a memorandum which related that before his marriage he had worked at his calling as a wood carver in America, the localities not being given, and that at a ball one evening a young girl endeavored to kiss him; that he repelled her, and she drowned herself.

The next day, Oct. 1, 1885, a kinsman of the girl challenged Von Bovens to a so called "American duel," drawing lots to determine which antagonist should kill himself. Von Bovens drew black and under the agreement was to kill himself in twelve years.

He returned to Germany, married, and the twelfth anniversary of the agreement passed unregarded, as did each succeeding one until a short time ago, when an American named Fish arrived in Berlin with a letter from Von Bovens' antagonist reminding him of the duty which he had not fulfilled. Von Bovens had taken cyanide potassium. He was enrolled on the police records of the district as a naturalized American.

The Tageblatt says it suspects that the incidents related by Von Bovens were invented by the suicide.

SMOKED AS THEY STOLE.

Cool Burglars Clean Out New York Lawyer's House.

New York, Oct. 3.—George P. De Lacey's house, 238 West One Hundred and Thirty-second street, was cleaned out by burglars, who carried off $10,000 worth of booty in the shape of silverware, bronzes, tapestries, pictures, jewelry and furs.

Mr. De Lacey, who is a lawyer, has been spending the summer at Arverne, N. Y., with his family, arrived at his city home to find it in possession of the police.

Little had been left by the thieves in the best rooms. Pictures for which high prices had been paid were gone, and old world bronzes with which the owner would hardly have parted at any price were missing. Mrs. De Lacey's wardrobe had been rifled, and costly furs which she had purchased only a year ago went with a number of handsome costumes.

The thieves got in by means of a coal hole on the sidewalk. In the dining room the remains of two cigars were found, showing that the thieves had worked with coolness and without the least fear of interruption.

PAT CROWE CAUGHT.

Alleged Kidnaper of Eddie Cudahy a Captive In Butte.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 3.—The identification of Pat Crowe, arrested here on a charge of kidnaping the son of the millionaire packer, Edward Cudahy, in 1900, has been made complete through photographs sent to the authorities by the Omaha officers. Crowe acknowledged he was the fugitive, becoming alarmed when he feared the authorities were going to shoot him. Captain of Police W. F. McGrath and Detective McInerney made the arrest, placing the muzzles of their revolvers against his stomach as he emerged from a saloon in the tenderloin section of the city.

Crowe declared he would return to Omaha without requisition papers. He cursed bitterly at his arrest, expressing chagrin at his capture in a town the size of Butte, when he, as he said, had traveled the world over and evaded capture in all the large cities.

Two opinions construing the general Fish act of 1903 were given to State Fish Commissioner Meehan Friday by Deputy Attorney General Frederick Fleitz. In one he decides that the half-inch space between the slats of a fish basket must exist at all times, and that the word "bottom" in the act means the entire bottom and not a portion. Mr. Fleitz holds in the other that the right granted by a license to operate a fish basket with wing walls for the purpose of taking eels can be enjoyed only by the person named therein.

In his annual report, Brigadier-General Grant, commanding the department of the east, speaking of the many trials by courtmartial, says that fully 75 per cent. of these trials were due to the use of bad liquor in dens of vice near military posts. Says the general: "These depraved creatures and low women use every device in their power to induce the soldiers to patronize their brothels, where those who yield to temptation are frequently drugged and robbed. It is distressing that the prosperity of the vice resorts is due to the activity of good and worthy, although misguided, citizens, who have succeeded in abolishing the canteen of the army."

"The doggerel sung in some of the little hymn books so extensively used in evangelistic services and in young people's meetings in vitating the taste for good poetry and destroying the fine appreciation of good hymns which ought to obtain in the Christian church. In many of the tunes to which this poor poetry is set there is sound without music, as there are words without sense. Such singing destroys the spirit of reverence which ought to characterize church service. Sterling character and strong religious conviction can no more be built up by such folderol than a strong physique can be built on an exclusive diet of confectionery."—Rev. John Thompson.

State Insurance Commissioner David Martin is after certain mutual life and fire insurance companies that are alleged to be operating on the same lines as the three Pittsburg mutual concerns which the department recently forced into the hands of a receiver. Commissioner Martin says that the agents of his department are at work on the books and accounts of half a dozen companies. He declined to make public the names of these companies, but said he expected to have reports on them within the next ten days. In event of any of these concerns being found to be insolvent or operating illegally, prompt steps will be taken to put them into the hands of receivers and wind up their affairs.

The most unfortunate of people is the boy who is a chronic truant from school. Soon he will have to quit his delightful wandering by the river, his excursions to the woods and his experimental efforts in various forms of mischief, and go to work, says an exchange. Then begins a life that is limited and made hard in a thousand ways by his lack of knowledge. If he would be a foreman in later life, his lack of power to solve problems in arithmetic and make proper reports will hammer him and prevent his rising. If he goes upon the railroad, he will find his work along lines where intelligence counts most. If he would engage in business for himself, he will find the lack of a trained brain a serious encumbrance which can only be overcome by prodigious application, but it is done slowly and with a hundred times the effort it would have taken to gain the same mental power in school.

THE BEST WAY.

There are many Republicans in Pennsylvania whose political sentiments at the present time are well expressed by Senator Knox of this State who said in a recent interview:

"I will vote the entire Republican State ticket in November and I believe it will be elected. I believe in electing Republicans to the State offices and that the Republican party should see that they administer the offices faithfully and well.

"I believe the best way to maintain National Republican supremacy is to maintain the supremacy of the party within the States, and the best way to maintain the supremacy of the party within the States and to make the State's influence proportionate to its greatness is, in my judgment to have the party meet the just and reasonable demands of the people for wise legislation and honest administration.

"I am satisfied that this is the view of the great majority of Pennsylvanians, and a great majority of Pennsylvanians are Republicans."

Senator Knox goes straight to the very marrow of the belief of many Republicans in saying that the best way to maintain National Republican supremacy is to maintain the supremacy of the party within the states, and for this reason the Republicans of Pennsylvania will support the regular ticket this fall. That is a good and sufficient reason why they will give the ticket their votes. They believe that the ticket nominated is entitled to receive their support, first, because it is a good ticket, and second, because it was fairly selected, in the regular way, and by Republican methods. In doing this they are unmindful of the objections urged against one of the candidates on the ticket by the opposition. But against the candidate for State treasurer there have been no charges affecting his honesty or intelligence. His neighbors, and those who know him best, testify to his high character and his ability. He went into the State convention in the regular way and was nominated without opposition as the representative of the Republican party of Pennsylvania. With what grace, then, can the Republicans refuse to support him?

The attempt to join State issues with the movement for reform now going on in Philadelphia will not succeed. No candid Republican can defend the rascality of some of the party's leaders in that city or belittle the efforts of her citizens to free her government from their grasp. Every good citizen will rejoice in Philadelphia's redemption, and will pray that the present wave of reform will sweep away every vestige of graft and forever banish the dishonest political methods that have so long disgraced her.

It is nonsense to say that the present movement in that city is aimed at the Republican party. It is, on the contrary, in direct agreement with Republican principles and was begun and will be continued by Republicans whose fidelity to the party can not be questioned. But on the other hand, it is even more foolish to attempt to inject into State politics local issues which pertain to Philadelphia alone. To strike at the Republican state ticket because some of the party leaders in that city have proven recreant to their trust would be discreditable alike to voters, intelligence and honesty, and to fly to the Democratic party for the reform of the practices of which they complain is the very height of folly. There is, however, very little danger that Republicans will make the mistake. Like Senator Knox they believe that the best way to maintain National Republican supremacy is to maintain supremacy of the party within the State.

SERMON ON CONSCIENCE.

Rev. Dr. James R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse University, preached at both services at the First Congregational church at Binghamton Sunday. His evening text was Timothy 1:19, "Holding Faith and a good Conscience," and his theme was "Conscience." He began with the thought that conscience alone is not a sure guide, but that to it must be added faith.

Some of his striking utterances are: "Some men's consciences are so extremely sensitive that they would not black their shoes on Sunday morning, but they would not hesitate to blacken their neighbor's reputation on other days of the week.

"Conscience is not your guide. It is not a safe guide and often guides us wrong. It is just as capable of fallacy as any other quality of the mind and may make a mistake in regard to a standard just the same as any of the senses. Conscience is simply the moral sense which has to be corrected again and again to keep it correct.

"It seems to exist in a variety of species and generally all over the world, allowing and disallowing things in strange confusion. You never find it the same needle pointing to the same pole for all people."

Conscience is a great deal like the liver. It needs medicine frequently to arouse it from a state of torpidity.

DALRYMPLE'S VIEWS.

"Before the cities of the United States may hope for the successful operation of the municipal ownership plant they must divorce the subject absolutely from politics. If politics bears any part in the conduct of such undertakings I am afraid they cannot be successful."

Such is the summing up of the observations made by James Dalrymple, head of the municipally owned street railway system of Glasgow, Scotland, in a half-dozen cities of the United States. That, in his opinion, is a condition necessary before all such experiments and without it there must be failure.

"You know the purpose for which Mayor Dunne asked me to come to Chicago last summer," he said to a correspondent. "I was to tell him what we in Glasgow had done, how we had done it, what we are still doing and what we hope to do.

"No, as to the question of the practicability of the plan in America, let me say this and confine my remarks directly to the people of Chicago, that if the people of Chicago carry out their undertakings as we in Glasgow have done I am certain the same success will attend their efforts.

"But," continued Mr. Dalrymple, earnestly, "I have said over and over again to Mayor Dunne and the people of Chicago thatI cannot see how they may possibly hope for success unless they divorce such undertakings absolutely from all political interference.

"Politics do not enter into the operation of utilities by the municipality of Glasgow. We never think of it in that connection. The city has owned the street railway system since 1871 and has operated it successfully since 1894. When I say 'successfully' I mean from every point of view—from the viewpoint of the citizen, the traveling public and also from a financial and mechanical point of view.

"The Street Railways committee appoints a general manager, and he, in turn, suggests the heads of the three departments of the system, the finance superintendent, the traffic superintendent and the chief engineer. He does not make these appointments except with the consent of the committee. Upon the general manager depends the success of the ventures to a great extent. At least he is held responsible by the committee, and justly so, for the good government and good conduct of all the staff under him; he is responsible for all appointments except the three named; he is responsible for dismissals, for everything, in fact."

THE VACCINATION LAW.

That the Department of Health of Pennsylvania has gone about the enforcement of the vaccination law in a bungling manner, any one familiar with the facts will admit. Instead of taking up the matter in time, before the schools opened, Commissioner Dixon's circular letter to principals and teachers reaches them after the beginning of the school year. It should have been settled before. A large percentage, in fact a very large proportion of the teachers upon whom the matter rests, are young, of immature judgment and experience. Many patrons of the schools everywhere, whether they believe in vaccination or not will comply with the law because it is the law; some teachers, backed by their school directors will enforce it. In other caces patrons will refuse to comply, and the teacher, encouraged by school directors who do not understand or do not care for the law, will permit unvaccinated pupils to attend. There are plenty of both kinds in Bradford county. It is stated that in one township where the teacher of a school had the backbone to refuse admission to children not vaccinated, a member of the school board invited those children to attend another school in the same township where no attempt was made to enforce the law. Other directors have so little regard for its provisions that they declare themselves ready to pay any fines imposed on their teachers out of the school funds.

This is wrong. The law should be enforced impartially, not only in the public schools, but in the Sunday schools as well. If the act compelling vaccination is right for the pupil of the public school, it is just as important that it should be enforced in every Sunday school in the county. The Sunday school superintendent who evades its provisions is just as amenable to the law as the principal or teacher of a public school.

To make the law effective the Department of Health should have a representative in each county. At present it is only partially enforced and is a source of trouble all 'round.

The present population of Greater New York, according to an announcement of the census just taken by the health department, is 4,342,010. This is a gain of 904,808 in the last five years. The total gain in the five year period has been over 38 2-3 per cent. New York has now become the second city in the world in size, and is rapidly overtaking London.

If things are not going on to suit you, don't "knock," get up and hustle. This is the age of action and achievement.

BUREAUCRATIC CONTROL.

The point has been made by critics at Washington of our national administrative system that recent revelations have shown that the so-called bureaucratic method of control has sharply drawn limitations, as well as obvious defects. Administrative inefficiency in the naval department, as illustrated by the Bennington disaster; in the war department, as shown by the recent Philadelphia arsenal scandal; in the department of agriculture, as indicated by the cotton statistics scandals and in the resignation of Dr. Salmon, head of the bureau of animal industry; in the postoffice department, as was shown in the trials of those engaged in attempts to defraud the government—all furnish cumulative evidence that it is easily possible for the United States government to appoint persons to do work who will sadly betray the trust imposed in them. It is said that conservative members of Congress are coming to look with more and more disfavor on all questions of bureaucratic extension; that is, on all suggestions looking toward giving the authorities at Washington a greater measure of control than they now possess over the various activities and interests of the nation, because it is felt that, even when officials do not go wrong, changes made in great administrative offices, which are constantly taking place, would be quite apt to throw out of gear the consistent control of great business undertakings. This brings up the point that to place in the control of the interstate commerce commission, or of any other federal body, the administration of the railroads of the United States, where for the greatest efficency and best results stability and integrity are imperatively required, would be an experiment which, in view of the bureaucratic experiences we have referred to above, could hardly fail to prove disastrous to the wellbeing of the people.—Boston Herald.

FACTS ABOUT SAKHALIN.

Just what the possession of the southern end of the island of Sakhalin, or Karaputo, as the Japanese still call it, means to Japan a Japanese writer in the current Independent tells.

It was not of its own free will that Japan started with the island originally. The first Russian invasion of Japanese territory took place in Karaputo in 1803. What was known as the Shogun government, was then in authority in Japan. Half a century after Japan and Russia were still trying unsuccessfully to make terms as to Karaputo, but in the year 1875, the eighth year of what the Japanese call the Enlightened Reign, the czar froced Japan to give up the entire island and gave to her, in "exchange" the Kurile group of bleak and sterile rocks.

And so far the past quarter of a century whenever the Japanese have looked in the geography they have remembered the spacious wealth of Karaputo and disgrace and regret have burned into their eyes and minds. Never before had Nippon, the "Home Land of the Sun," suffered humilation from an alien foe. Never before had invaders been allowed to tread upon the sacred soil.

It appears that the whole island is floored with coal beds, especially on the coast. It only lacks a suitable port to provide grounds for successful mining work. The soil is not especially suitable for agriculture, but is rich in splendid pine and other timbers. Untouched magnificent forests cloak the two ranges of mountains which form the backbone of the island. In this respect the southern part of Sakhalin, says our Japanese authority, promises results which will make Oregon sit up and think.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

THE COMMITTEE'S TICKET.

The Bradford county Democratic committee to whom the county convention delegated authority to fill vacancies on the county ticket, has made the following selection: Sheriff, Job Griffin, Athens; treasurer, A. H. Burchill, Towanda; register and recorder, John E. Passmore, South Creek; coroner, Dr. Francis Chaffee, Towanda. A candidate for prothonotary will be named later. M. J. McNuity was nominated for commissioner and George Lull for auditor at the August primaries.

In a personal sense the ticket is unobjectionable and will receive the full Democratic vote, but it does not in any way, appeal to Republican support. With the exception of the candidate for commissioner and auditor it is the creation of a few men whose selection in no sense represents the choice of the rank and file of the party. But for that matter it is probably as good as any other, and will stand for what is supposed to be the Democratic party in Bradford county. It will not draw any votes from the Republican ticket.

LIFE INSURANCE.

Insurance men report that many thoughtless or frightened persons are allowing their life insurance policies to lapse, says the Scranton Times. And of these the largest number are men whose families can illy afford to do without the protection. The companies, be it remembered, are not worried because of the lapsing of policies—so long as the practice does not become general—because the companies benefit by the lapses. The money theretofore paid into the company, by the policy holders is clear gain for the company, which is relieved from liability by the failure to keep up the payments. But this is not written from the standpoint of the company.

There is one kind of man who does not care to make necessary self sacrifice required to keep up his insurance. This sort of a man has much to say about "Equitable scandal." He gleefully rubs his hands over each new revelation of graft or of the misuse of money by the officials of the big New York companies. He says, "I told you so." He goes home and says to his wife, "I'm glad I got rid of that policy. I always believed that to pay premiums on insurance was a waste of money." And the patient wife, who has a lively sense of what would happen if the bread winner should die, only sighs. She knows in her heart that the newspaper stories are only an excuse and that her husband does not care enough for his family to forego a single self-indulgence for the sake of the family. This is not written for that type of man. He doesn't care. The object aimed at in this sincere advice is to remind the careless man, or the thoughtless or the mistaken, of his plain duty.

In these days of reasonable insurance rates it is little less than a crime for a husband and father to go to his grave leaving his widow penniless and his children unprovided for. To what is he consigning his dear ones? He is putting upon the frail shoulders of his wife double and treble the burdens she bore while he lived. He is forcing his children to face hardships and sorrows and—who knows?—it may be disgrace. Life insurance today is as necesary as food and clothes. It is food and clothes. And of all men, the laboring man can least afford to be without it. The wealthy man leaves a valuable estate. The working man, if he has no insurance, leaves nothing. When he dies his wages cease. Hang onto your insurance. It is the sheet anchor of your family's hope. Do not rob your children or their chance to face the world on even terms. To do so is heartless. It is wanton. It is pitiless.

Certainly, you read much about the mismanagement of funds by certain officers of the large New York companies. ut all officials are not dishonest. And this distinction should be made. The only losers are the holders of investment insurance—the policy holders financially able to bear the loss. And this loss is very small. Those who are insured for life lose nothing. Nothing has been taken from the widows and orphans by the extravagance and license of the Equitable and other officials. The laws prevent that. In all states are strict laws protecting the rights of the insured. Scandals concerning the improper use of money in promoting the busines of insurance companies may come up from time to time, as they frequently have come up in the past, but the law sees to it that the assets of the companies are sufficient to pay all death losses. And this is true: The expose now being made will strengthen the companies. Life insurance will be all the safer because of the investigations. There is no good reason why anyone should let go his policy in any well-managed company.

IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY.

Regular Monthly Meeting Was Held at Court House.

The regular monthly meeting of the Village Improvement society was held in court room No. 2 Monday afternoon with 14 members present. The humane committee reported that it had recently held a conference with Judge A. C. Fanning and that he had explained to them the provisions of the juvenile court law. This law provides no pay for a probation officer and there can be no real court until this officer is provided for. Cases that have arisen coming under the law have been disposed of by allowing the youthful offenders to remain at home until sent away. Judge Fanning stated that the House of Refuge was not a prison as some seemed to think but that it was a school in which the inmates were taught trades and were even paid for their work. Some of them came out of the institution with money to their credit.

The Children's auxiliary committee through its chairman, Mrs. O. A. Baldwin, reported that a meeting of the Civics club was held at the High school on Friday at which Judge Fanning made an address outlining the work proposed. The club is to aid in beautifying the town and their individual homes. Bulbs and seeds will be distributed in the Spring.

A committee is to be appointed by the president of the society to make an investigation and see if a room cannot be secured where ladies who are shopping in Towanda may rest after their purchases have been made. There was considerable agitation over the questions of the opening of so many stores in Towanda on Sunday, the matter of a public park, the cleaning up of weeds and the throwing of papers on the streets. The society was informed by some of its members that Shepard Bristol in Towanda township has cleaned up his place to a great extent.

FATALITY AT SAYRE.

Dismembered Body of a Man Found There on Thursday Night.

The body of a man frightfully mangled was found on the Lehigh Valley tracks nearly opposite the Sayre station at 9 o'clock on Thursday night. The head was severed from the body, the right arm and both legs cut off.

Coroner Holcomb viewed the remains Friday morning. He described the man as about 35 years old, 5 feet and 8 inches tall; he was dressed in dark clothes with two shirts. The outer shirt was a light colored percale, and under garment a home made gingham shirt opening on the left shoulder. There was a small mole on the right check near the nose.

It was at first thought the man was one of the workers on the state bridge at Ulster, but the foreman there failed to identify him. Others professed to believe him Joseph Benjamin of Marshview.

Albert Chilson, father-in-law of Benjamin, went to Asylum Friday and found Benjamin there, alive and at work.

The remains were identified Saturday as those of Hartley Robinson of East Smithfield. He had been to the fair at Towanda and was returning home. It is not known just how he came to be in Sayre, as he should have got off the train at Milan. He was an unmarried man aged 30 years and lived with his mother and sister on a farm in Smithfield. He is survived by his mother, two sisters and two brothers. The remains were viewed Saturday morning by his brother and sister who came there thinking that he was their missing brother. The body was taken to his late home Saturday afternoon and the funeral held from the Ridgebury Catholic church Sunday afternoon. Interment was made at Ridgebury.

ROBBERY AT FAIR.

Candy Stand of Mr. Freer of Ithaca Touched for $285.

Freer, the Ithaca candy man who has a stand at the fair, was robbed of about $285 late Thursday afternoon. Mr. Freer had a satchel containing the money under the counter and shortly before 5 o'clock had occasion to make change from it. A few minutes later he went again to make change and the satchel was gone.

An investigation showed that a hole had been cut in the canvas in front of the stand and the satchel abstracted. Some one must have seen the money in the satchel and during a favorable opportunity took the satchel.

OCTOBER COUNCIL MEETING.

Very Little Business Done—September Banner Month for Arrests.

The October session of the town council Monday evening, was called to order and proceeded to do business for 15 minutes with the entire delegation from the First ward absent. Messrs. Cranska and Meredith came in later. The amount of business done in open session was infintesimal; what was done in the executive session that was taken up on motion of Councilman Meredith is unknown.

The street committee reported much work accomplished in repairs and cleaning the streets, and in building new side and cross walks. The electric light committee again for the steenth time reported that the street lights ordered many months ago were not yet placed. A walk was ordered built along the property of Chaffee & Rundell on North Fourth street from the property of Mrs. George H. Wood to the walk already built.

Chief Miller was granted a vacation of ten days.

The police report for September showed 36 arrests and the payment of $87 in fines and costs.

Messrs. Burchill, Cox and Meredith were named a committee to investigate and report upon the question of an all night street light service. Burgess pratt was present, and he took the above action as a text for some very pertinent suggestions on the value of permanent improvements, especially in street building. He is heartily in favor of a brick pave on the business portion of Main street.

At 8:10 the council went into executive or secret session.

Didn't Want Children Vaccinated.

Quite a lively time occurred at the Crofut school house on Thursday. Several scholars were sent home on account of not being vaccinated. GENUINE SURPRISE PARTY.

John Coe and Wife Found a Man in Their Bed Thursday Night.

Thursday evening when John Coe and wife returned to their home in Wyalusing township after attending the fair they discovered a light in their bedroom and they found Geo. Frutchey preparing to occupy the family bed. Upon asking him his business there he replied by asking Mr. Coe the same question and refused to vacate until help was summoned to remove him. He also took Mr. Coe's watch and chain.

Frutchey was brought to Towanda on Saturday and a commission in lunacy found him to be insane, and he was removed to Burlington.

What the Rural Carrier Can Do.

The impression prevails more or less that a rural free delivery mail carrier is not permitted to deliver or transact other business with the patrons of his route except that pertaining strictly to his postal duties, says an exchange. Not so. They may "carry articles or packages of unmailable merchandise for hire and upon the request of patrons residing on their respective routes." In other words, so long as it does not interfere with his official business the rural carrier may take orders for unmailable groceries or dry goods or hardware, and in general act as a daily messenger to town. Any package weighing more than four pounds is unmailable, as well as liquids, explosives, oils, edged tools and other things which are expressly excluded from the mails. It is a gross imposition, however, to expect or ask him to do so without pay simply because he is a friend, acquaintance and good natured.

Good Place for State Road.

Anyone who wishes to find a first class place for the construction of a state aid road should drive from Towanda to Wysox. The dust is several inches thick and will tend to cause more drinking of various kinds to cut out the dirt that anything known of hereabouts. It is about three miles from Towanda to Wysox. State roads cost about $7,500 per mile. That would be $22,500. Of this the state would pay three-fourths or $16,875 and the county one eighth or $2,825 and the township of Wysox $2,825.

No Place for Bills.

Some one with more zeal than good sense has pasted advertising bills on the iron county bridge over Stevens' Ferry.. It's bad enough to have the wooden bridge at Towanda plastered with all manner of bills but when it comes to doing the same to the new bridges it's time to call a halt. The Stevens Ferry bridge, by the way, has never been painted and it will be one of the first structures on which the county commissioners will have to use brush and paint.

A Magnificent Drive.

One of the most beautiful of the many magnificent drives around Towanda is over South Mountain, taking what is known as the upper road near the summit. This brings out near the Storrs place at Standing Stone and the return to Towanda may be made either over the Storrs's ferry and by the Standing Stone narrows or along the river on the west side. The scenery all along the drive is unusually fine.

Wreck on S. & N. Y.

A freight train on the Susquehanna & New York railroad, running from Ellenton to Ralston was wrecked on Saturday evening, the breaking down of the engine allowing the train to get beyond control of the engineer. The Usual Assessment.

Seven offenders were before the burgess Friday morning on plain drunk and disorderly charges. Five were the boys arrested in the First ward, and two were men who had been to the fair. Two of the younger boys were discharged with a reprimand and the other five were assessed $3.50 each.

BANK ROBBER CAUGHT

Man Who Stole $359,000 In Bonds a Young Wall Street Clerk.

SAYS HE DID IT AS A "STUNT"

Wanted to Show How Easy It Was to "Get Away With the Goods"—Sent Most of His Loot Back Next Day. Held In $50,000 Bail.

New York, Oct. 2.—Henry Leonard, twenty-four years old, a ten dollar a week messenger for Halle & Steiglitz, brokers, of 30 Broad street, is the man who robbed the National City bank of $359,000 in securities on Wednesday last.

Leonard lives at 586 East One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street. He looks younger than he really is and is the last person one would suspect of engineering the scheme to which he confessed. Leonard was arrested by Captain McCauley of the detective bureau, Superintendent Dougherty of the Pinkerton agency and Detective Sergeant Woolridge of the central office while he was standing at the corner of One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street and Third avenue. In the Tombs police court he was held by Magistrate Pool in $50,000 bail for examination. On going out he said to a questioner, "I did it on a bet."

One of the strangest parts of the young man's story told to the police was his assertion that he had committed the theft just to show how easy it was to fool the National City bank clerks.

Both Captain McCauley and Albert Steiglitz believe that he got the securities with no other end in view.

A statement made to the police that he had mailed the bulk of the papers to Mr. Pearl was substantiated by the latter's son. The culprit, instead of mailing them to the office of the firm, sent them to Mr. Dyer Pearl's home. He is in Europe, and there the envelope lay from late Wednesday afternoon until Sunday, when Mr. Pearl's son opened the package.

Made Full Confession.

The young man declared that on Sept. 26 he found four blank checks of the Hanover National bank while near the bank. Later that day he said he was in the corridor of the National City bank and among the men waiting in line he saw a youth holding in his hand an envelope marked "$300,000, 4¼ per cent." He heard the loan clerk tell the messenger that the interest was 4½ per cent and not 4¼ per cent. The messenger then went out.

Leonard took his cue from this, he said. He found another check which had the certification stamped on it. He cut this out and took it up to a stamp maker at 272 Bowery and ordered a copy made. After he secured the die he filled out the body of the check drawn on the Hanover bank and went down into Wall street. This was on Wednesday. He called a boy and asked if he knew where the National City bank was.

"No, I don't," said the lad.

"What? You don't? Why, it's at 52 Wall. You take this check there and hand it to the loan clerk, and I will pay you when you bring me the package."

Leonard stood opposite the custom house and saw the boy receive the package. The securities were delivered to him within a few minutes. The young man declared that he at once took all the valuable bonds and securities to his home and without delay put them in a wrapper, put stamps on the package and then carried it down to a mail box at Ninety-second street, where he mailed them to Dyer Pearl, at 34 West Seventy-third street, who was a member of Pearl & Co., who owned these securities. There were, however, only $300,000 worth of securities in the bundle. Leonard said it was impossible to mail all of the securities in one envelope because of their bulk.

A Columbia Law School Student.

More than four years ago the young man obtained his position in the brokerage house. His ambitions have been high. They led him to devote the greater part of his time not given to business to the study of law, and he would in a short time have been graduated from the Columbia Law school.

There he had given his attention to the branch of law relating to banks and brokerage. There is no detail of stock transfer with which he is not familiar.

He said in his confession that his crime first became fixed in his mind when he began to study how to make it impossible for just such a robbery to be committed.

The young man admitted that he had made several blunders in his robbery and expressed surprise that the officials before whom the check came did not detect them. He said the most ordinary precautions would have made it impossible for him to have succeeded. He declared that the form of the check should have stamped it as a fraud and had he sought to repeat his theft he would have had the office check of Pearl & Co. properly copied by a printer or engraver.

The young forger's detection, however, was not due to any of these admitted blunders, but to the purchase of the die from an obscure stamp maker.

After all other clews had been exhausted the detectives made a search of the city, visiting every stamp maker in each of the several boroughs. In this way the description of the forger was obtained.

Yellow Fever Situation.

New Orleans, Oct. 1.—The latest yellow fever report is as follows: New cases, 31; total to date, 3,000; deaths, 2; total, 388; new foci, 11; under treatment, 240; cases discharged, 2,372.

"A BOYISH ESCAPADE."

Young Leonard's Defense to Charge of Stealing $359,000.

New York, Oct. 3.—Abraham Levy has been retained to defend Harry Leonard, the young man arrested on Sunday for stealing $359,000 worth of securities from the City National bank by means of a bogus check. He had a long talk with Leonard at police headquarters. After the conference with the prisoner Mr. Levy said that he had gone over the case very thoroughly with the young man.

"As a result, I am thoroughly satisfied that there was no criminal intent on young Leonard's part," the lawyer added, "and that the whole affair was a foolish, boyish escapade. When he is arraigned I will make the contention that there was no criminal intent, and I think I will be able to convince the court of that fact."

Mr. Levy denounced mention in the case of the daughter of Park Commissioner Schrader. The two, he said, were merely acquaintances.

Acting Captain McCauley of the detective bureau said that there were no new developments in the remarkable case and that as far as the police end of it was concerned the matter closed with the return of the missing portion of the stolen securities to their owners.

COLOMBIA HARD UP.

Her Dollar Worth One Cent In American Money.

Washington, Oct. 3.—In regard to reports that lately have been made that Panama and Costa Rica would soon join and form one republic instead of two separate states the minister of Panama to this country, Senor Obaldia, received a cablegram from President Amador of the Panama republic saying:

"Rumor about union of Panama and Costa Rica false."

As to the recognition of Panama by Colombia and the payment of part of the foreign debt nothing could be said at this time by the minister, though the desperate financial straits of Colombia, he said, where at this moment a dollar has about the value of one American cent, make it very probable that the foreign creditors, who hold the larger part of this debt, will bring pressure upon Colombia to make a settlement with Panama, which is in far better financial condition.

Jerome Takes the Field.

New York, Oct. 3.—District Attorney Jerome was legally nominated for reelection by the filing of his petition for an independent nomination with the board of elections. While only 2,000 names are necessary to place Mr. Jerome in nomination, just double that number were attached to the petition. At one time it was the idea to delay the filing of the petition until the last day permitted by the law, but it was decided that so many thousands of names would only embarrass the board of elections, and that it would be best to file about 4,000 names representing all classes of the signers, the extra two thousand being in the nature of a precaution.

Carlton Gets Nineteen Years.

New York, Oct. 3.—Nineteen years at hard labor in Sing Sing was the aggregate sentence imposed by Judge Aspinall in the Kings county court on Frederick E. Carlton, who was convicted of grand larceny, convicted on one charge of bigamy and pleaded guilty to each of two other charges of bigamy last week. This sentence came after a verbal scorching in which Judge Aspinall said he wished he could send the prisoner to the electric chair. As the prisoner was being taken to a car on his way to Sing Sing a large crowd jeered at him, and some even attempted to strike him.

Lord Mayor Entertains Chaffee.

London, Oct. 3.—Lieutenant General Adna R. Chaffee and Brigadier General James F. Crozier were entertained at luncheon by Lord Mayor Pound and the lady mayoress at the Mansion House. After the luncheon General and Mrs. Chaffee and General Crozier were taken in motor cars to Wrest Park, Bedfordshire, where they will be the guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed for Pennsylvania: Braznell, Clark C. Ebbert; New Treeport, Louis L. Foulkes; Outcrop, Herman H. Keyes; Rossville, Samuel L. Seifert.

Convicted Henry Lear.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1. — Henry Lear, former president of the Doylestown (Pa.) National bank, was convicted in the United States district court of willful misapplication of the funds of the institution. He was acquitted on the two other counts in the indictment, which charged embezzlement and abstraction of the funds of the bank. Pending an appeal, bail was increased by Judge McPherson from $7,500 to $10,000.

HONOR THE PRESIDENT

Hearty Welcome Accorded Him In Washington by Populace.

DEEPLY MOVED BY OUTBURST

"Awfully Kind of Them," He Remarked—Brilliant Scene at White House Upon the Arrival of Executive Party. Mansion Illuminated.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Thousands of his fellow citizens turned out to welcome President Roosevelt to the national capital and made his homecoming an occasion for an ovation from the time he was sighted on the platform of his car until he passed within the doors of the White House. There was no band of music, but the sweeter melody of the cheers of the assembled people made the air ring with hurrahs as his carriage passed slowly up the avenue. The president was deeply touched by the welcome and especially by its spontaneity.

"It was awfully kind of them to come out to greet me," he remarked to some friends at the White House portecochere, "and I was deeply, deeply touched by their welcome."

Arrival of Presidential Train.

On the platform as the presidential train arrived were assembled a dozen or more officials. At their head was Mr. West, the District commissioner who was in charge of the arrangements for the welcome and who was the first to shake the president's hand as he stepped from the train. With the president were his secretary of state, Mr. Root, and Mrs. Root and the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Shaw. At the station were Secretary Hitchcock, Postmaster General Cortelyou, Mr. Quesada, the Cuban minister; Dr. Rixey, the surgeon general of the navy; Mr. Palmer, the marshal for the District of Columbia, and others.

A mighty cheer went up as the crowd inside the depot caught sight of the president, which was taken up by the crowds outside of the station and passed along the line as the president was recognized. He shook hands first with the cabinet members and other officials. He then gave Mrs. Roosevelt his arm and walked slowly to his carriage, which was waiting at the Sixth street entrance. As he reached the engine the president thanked the engineer for his safe trip and stopped to shake his hand.

The Start For the White House.

In the carriage with the president were Mrs. Roosevelt, Ethel, Kermit and Quentin. Quentin sat on the box with the coachman.

The cabinet and other members of the party followed in carriages, accompanying the president to the White House. A brilliant scene greeted the president's eye as he reached the White House. The mansion was illuminated from basement to attic, bathing the whole white structure in a soft radiant glow.

As the president reached the White House gate he stopped his carriage and, lifting his hat to the crowd, said:

"Good night, good luck and thank you so much for all this."

GREAT REVIVAL COMING.

"Means the Success of All Who Keep It," Says Rockefeller.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 1.—John D. Rockefeller in his prayer meeting address at the Euclid Avenue church told his hearers what to do to be saved.

"As we come together here, prompted and controlled by the spirit of love which is in Jesus," he said, "I cannot but believe that the time is near when those on the outside of the church will see this.

"A great wave of religion is sweeping over the country. We see it everywhere. Religious joy appears wherever we turn. We who have experienced this life have no doubt that these signs we see are true signs.

"There is no line drawn by God. The doors are open. Rich, poor, high, low, laborer, employer—there is no difference. God calls for his children. The day is coming when the great, clear light of hope, that which is our very life, shall be consummated in eternity. Let us rejoice in the light of this hope."

Mr. Rockefeller made a strong religious appeal when discussing the promise of the covenant.

"It means the success of all who keep it," he said. "I believe the solution of many of the troublesome problems which confront us today—the affairs of business, labor, finances and even life itself—will be easy for us in the covenant which we keep."

Witte Now a Count.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 2.—The imperial decree formally announcing the bestowal on M. Witte of the rank of count adds that the distinction is given "in recognition of his services to the throne and fatherland and the admirable manner in which he discharged a task of the highest importance to the state and as a mark of the special favor of the emperor."

Mitchell Says Mines Won't Close.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 28.—John Mitchell says he attaches no importance to the reports from Pittsburg that the operators will shut down the mines in April. He has just completed his tour of reorganization of the United Mine Workers in the anthracite region. Mr. Mitchell will leave for New York next week to be treated for throat trouble.

Frank Beard, Illustrator, Dead.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Frank Beard, a well known illustrator, died at his home in this city of cerebral hemorrhage. He was widely known as the originator of "Chalk Talk" and for many years has been connected with the Ram's Horn, a religious publication. Beard was sixty-three years old.

MITCHELL AT WHITE HOUSE.

Labor Leader Discusses "Personal Matter" With the President.

Washington, Oct. 3.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, had an interview with President Roosevelt by appointment. He remained with the president about half an hour. At the conclusion of his interview Mr. Mitchell said he had come to Washington to see the president not at the latter's invitation, but of his own volition, to talk with him about "a personal matter." Pressed for information as to the nature of his mission, he said that he had urged the president to appoint Louis Hammerling, editor of the official organ of the United Mine Workers, as collector of internal revenue for the Scranton (Pa.) district. He declined to indicate whether the appointment would be made or not. Hammerling is opposed by some members of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation.

"I did not discuss with the president the labor situation in the anthracite fields," said Mr. Mitchell. "My business with him was purely on this personal matter."

In response to other inquiries Mr. Mitchell said that he did not know whether the coal operators had large stores of surplus coal on hand or not, as he had made no investigation along that line. He said also that he had made no inquiry as to the possible result of the enforcement of the child labor law in closing some of the Pennsylvania coal mines.

RIOT IN REICHSRATH.

Czechs and Radicals Force Suspension of Sitting.

Vienna, Oct. 3.—The president of the lower house of the reichsrath was obliged to suspend the session on account of a stormy demonstration on the part of the Czechs and Radicals. The latter, interrupting the business of the house, rushed in a body to the ministerial bench and insisted on the minister of the interior replying to an interpellation on the subject of the disturbances at Bruenn. All attempts to restore order were futile.

The king-emperor received the Austrian premier, Baron Fejervary, and the Austrian interior minister, M. Kristoffy, in special audience in connection with the Hungarian situation. Subsequently M. Lanyi, the Hungarian minister of justice, was summoned to the palace. The audience of the ministers lasted three hours and was largely devoted to the discussion of the scheme for universal suffrage. His majesty postponed his decision, but as the Hungarian ministers are remaining in Vienna it is believed this will not be greatly delayed.

Germans Foil Boer Plot.

A Lake That Stores Heat.

There is a lake that stores the sun's heat at Medeve, in northeastern Transylvania. Thick beds of rock salt underlie the district, and a similar formation appears upon the surface in mounds, some of them over 100 feet in height. Among these the lake rests at fully 1,500 feet above sea level. Upon the surface its water is almost sweet, four inches below there is a twentieth of salt, at two feet there is one-fifth, and at five feet the water is practically saturated with salt. In September, after a summer's sunshine, the thermometer showed the lake's waters to be 150 degrees four feet down. Even by April, after a whole season of wintry weather, it had only been reduced to 80 degrees. Experiments have proved that this is due to absorption and retention of the sun's heat by the salt saturated solution.

Breaking It Gently.

He is a rather serious minded boy who has more sense of responsibility than many grown persons. So when he was sent to his grandmother's to break the news of her aged sister's death he did so with much gravity and no little self importance.

"Now, Alfred," his mother said, "you mustn't tell grandma suddenly, because it might shock her, even though she knew Aunt Martha was ill. Tell it to her gently."

"All right," assented Alfred, starting out on his mission with mingled solemnity and eagerness.

Arrived at his grandmother's house, he greeted her with a sober "Hello!" and then proceeded to "break the news" by saying:

"Aunt Maria's dead, grandma, but you mustn't feel bad, 'cause she was pretty old, anyhow. You'll be the next one, I s'pose."—Brooklyn Life.

Grace Knives.

There is a curious class of knives of the sixteenth century the blades of which have engraved on one side the musical notes to the benediction of the table, or grace before meat, and on the other the grace after meat. These knives usually went in sets of four, representing a four part harmony of bass, tenor, alto and treble. They were kept in an upright case of stamped leather and were placed before the singers according to the adaptation of each one to his particular part. As may be supposed, the inscription was usually in Latin. The following specimen is taken from actual knives of the period: "Pro tuis beneficiis Deus, gratias agimus tibi" (For thy good gifts, O God, we thank thee).

WALKS UP FLATIRON

Steel Nerved Steeplejack Scales Skyscraper's Outer Wall.

PARALYZES BUSY BROADWAY

Traffic Stops While Excited Crowds Watch Human Fly Ascend and Descend Perpendicular Precipice to Win a Bet of $2.

New York, Sept. 29.—The real "human fly" is in New York. He has no wings, but he has walked up and down the side of the Flatiron building several times without the slightest trouble, and will do it again if any one makes it worth his while.

His name is John Garrick, and he is a steeple jack as well as a "human fly."

When he took his little constitutional up and down the side of the Flatiron building, walking from the twentieth story down, then up, then down again, Garrick caused a panic in Broadway. Traffic was halted, motormen and conductors forgot their time schedules, women fainted and strong men turned pale with the horrible fear that the steeplejack would fall. But they did not realize that Garrick was a human fly.

As for the man whose performance caused all the excitement, he was perfectly unconcerned. In as matter of fact a way as he would have strolled along Broadway, Garrick fixed his fingers and toes into the inch and a quarter interstices between the faces of the massive blocks that form the Flatiron's walls and went up and down, occasionally halting to be photographed and to smile down at the thunderstruck crowd below.

The performance of the human fly was the more remarkable in that he did not touch a window sill in his ascents or descents except to enter or emerge from the building.

To Win a Bet of $2.

Garrick's feat was prompted by a wager of $2, which a friend had made with him, against the possibility of his walking up and down the side of the Flatiron building. At the time the bet was made Garrick observed that it was "a shame to take the money." His performance proved he was right. He knew what he was about. He isn't thirty years old for nothing, and he hasn't been a steeplejack and aeronaut half his life without absorbing a great deal of exact knowledge upon the science of climbing up and down the sides of lofty buildings and looking down from dizzy heights without turning a hair.

Garrick's wager was made in his Brooklyn home, at 92 Marion street. The bet was hardly agreed upon when the "human fly" boarded a car for Manhattan. He went straight to the Flatiron building and, entering an elevator, ascended to the twentieth story.

Amazes Flatiron Clerks.

The first door opening into an office on the Broadway side attracted Garrick. He went in, walked through a group of amazed clerks to a window, opened it and quickly climbed over the sill and down the side of the building.

Then the clerks came out of their trance. Two of the men shouted "Suicide!" and made a grab for the "human fly," but they were too late. He was already ten feet beneath the sill and rapidly descending in a diagonal direction in order to avoid the windows extending in a straight line from the one out of which he had stepped.

Sticking his fingers and toes carefully into the horizontal grooves that form ledges an inch and a quarter deep between the faces of the building blocks, he treated them as ladder steps and seemed to be just as sure of himself as if they really had been such.

He had not gone far when the crowd below saw him. Then there was trouble. Women screamed; drivers swore. All gazed upward until they got cricks in their necks.

But Garrick only smiled. He came down quickly, climbed over the ornamental stone work at the second story and reached the sidewalk.

A crowd swarmed about him and plied him with questions.

"It is a shame to take the money!" said the "human fly."

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Pattern For a Small Princess Dress Designed by Martha Dean—No. 4686

Mother is not the only one who can have fashionable gowns, but the tiny maid who brings so much of sunshine into the house must have them too. She need not take so vast a pleasure therein, but she does look a deal more bewitching. Here is a little princess gown with a round yoke extending down the front in stole fashion. Not alone the stole yoke makes the little dress attractive, but the embroidery which adorns it. A narrow edging of lace finishes the yoke and sleeves attractively, while three miniature tucks adorn the lower edge of the dress. The skirt part is gathered at the yoke, which gives it a graceful fullness. Nainsook, lawn, mull or chambray may be used as material for this dress and prove pleasing. If chambray is used the stole yoke may be made of all over embroidery. The pattern is very simple to make and will cause the least experienced dressmaker no difficulty. For a medium size two and one-eighth yards of thirty-six inch material are needed. Six sizes, 1 to 6 years.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING

Send 10 cents to this office, give number of this pattern, No. 4686, and state size desired. It will then be sent to you by mail postpaid. Be sure to write plainly and always give full address. Several days must be allowed for delivery of pattern.

Pattern For a Pretty Round Yoke Dress by Martha Dean—No. 4687

Practical designs for school frocks are always welcome to the mother who fashions her daughter's gowns, and the design shown is excellent for this purpose. It is simple and easily made and yet embodies no small amount of style. The round yoke is youthful and becoming and may be tucked, plain, stitched or made of a contrasting material. Shaped trimming straps of the material, finished with pretty buttons, edge the yoke and form the cuffs and belt. Narrow tucks simulate a vest in the front of the full blouse, while tucks relieve the plainness of the skirt. Serge, challie and linen are the most serviceable materials for the small girl's gown, but pongee or silk might be used for a nice dress. The pattern is very simple and need cause the most inexperienced dressmaker no difficulty. For the medium size three and three-quarter yards of thirty-six inch material are needed. Seven sizes, 5 to 12 years.

GIRLLESS EXCHANGE.

One Just Opened by Bell Company at Montgomery.

The Pennsylvania Telephone company has just opened a new exchange at Montgomery, which will give individuals and all the manufacturing plants direct connection with the outside toll connections at Muncy. The new exchange starts operations with 25 subscribers on the list, offices being located in the new building of George W. Haeffer. With the installation of its telephones at Montgomery the Bell company is giving the first trial to the automatic exchange in this territory, thus doing away with all hello-girls.

Each subscriber is furnished with an exchange board of his own, which can only be used where there is a small number of 'phones in use. The appliance is something in the form of a dial, with numbered plug holes. When the user wishes to call he inserts the plug in the right hole and presses a button the stated number of time for the rings. Although on trial for the first time the new system works well and promises to be for small communities a better convenience than the oldest established central.

Specifications Not Followed.

An experiment in road improvement under the new state law of Pennsylvania has just been made near Glenburn in Lackawanna county, the result of which promises a sensation. The contract was given to a Maryland construction company and after work was completed somebody dug a number of holes in the new road and it is said they discovered that instead of four inches of trap rock called for by the specifications, less than two inches were found. The new road building cost about $11,000 per mile. The state commissioner of highways has examined the work but his report has not yet been made public.

Still At It.

The original "Lehigh Valley Railroad" was first designed and built to carry coal to the tide water, a business it is still engaged in to an enormous extent, years and years after the road has outgrown the valley of the Lehigh river and reached out east and west for hundreds of miles. When other roads were burning four foot "cord wood" to make steam under the boilers of their locomotives, the Lehigh Valley was using smokeless anthracite coal, and is doing so at the present day.

Going to Indian Territory.

U. S. W. V. ORDERS.

Meeting Place and Meeting Night are to Be Changed.

Commander O. W. Brown of Charles F. Moore Camp, U. S. W. V., has issued his general order No. 2, in which he states that the camp has been obliged to give up its meeting place at the corner of Main and Bridge strets, sub-let from the Sons of Veterans. The camp will probably be able to secure quarters in P. O. S. of A. hall, but if that is done it will be necessary to change the meeting night from the first Thursday to either the first Tuesday or first Friday in the month.

The P. O. S. of A. have placed their hall at the disposal of the camp for Friday evening, Oct. 6, at which time and place a meeting will be held to take action on the proposed changes. Six recruits have joined since the last order. Each member is urged to make himself a recruiting committee and bring in a candidate for this special meeting.

STRINGENT HUNTING LAWS.

Seekers for Game Find New Conditions Very Hard Indeed.

New State laws bearing on hunting and in regard to trespassing, are so stringent that they are hitting nimrods so hard they are are almost out of the race for game. This Fall all a farmer needs to do is put up his signs "No trespassing" and without even warning a hunter from his land he may appear before a justice of the peace or alderman and cause the hunter's arrest.

In the Grays Run region the Central Pennsylvania Lumber Company has posted trespass notices over its thousands of acres of land. This will keep hunters away from what was a great game locality. The many restrictions that hedge the hunters are leading many to sell their dogs, as it will not pay them under present conditions to keep dogs all year and get only three or four days of hunting.

BABY TUCKER'S WONDERFUL CURE

Covered from Head to Foot with Humours—Forty Boils on Head at One Time—Doctors and Drug Bills $100—Baby Grew Worse.

CURED BY CUTICURA FOR FIVE DOLLARS

Mrs. George H. Tucker, Jr., 335 Greenfield Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., is a grateful mother. "When six months old," she says, "my little girl weighed a pound and a half less than at birth. When one month old a scab formed on her face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up, and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure, and now my child is as large, strong, and healthy as any child of her age. The doctor's and drug bills were over one hundred dollars, and my baby grew worse all the time. Then we spent less than five dollars for Cuticura and cured her."

CUTICURA A BLESSING

TOO MUCH NOISE.

Salvation Army Drum Drowns Out Services in Churches.

A matter that was brought up before the Towanda borough council on Monday evening that is of interest is the protest that has been made against the noise of the Salvation Army in its street marching and meetings. On Sunday nights and nights when churches are having their services ministers' voices are drowned out by the loud beating of the drum and the blare of the cornets used by the army.

The churches of Towanda have the kindliest feelings toward the Salvation Army. It has a scope of work that the churches have always failed to fill. But when the army makes so much noise that it interferes with the services in the churches objection is made. Secretary Lane was delegated to see the officer in charge of the Army meetings.

TO FEED 25,000 CATTLE.

York County Farmers Expect to Sell 25,000,000 Pounds of Beef.

It is estimated that 25,000 head of cattle will be fed on the farms throughout York county during the coming season. A number have already been shipped into town and sent to different points in the county.

Farmers have found it profitable and many have been turning their attention towards feeding and look forward to a prosperous year.

Henry Kendig, a local cattle dealer, estimates that the steers will average 1,000 pounds each after they have been fattened, which would in round numbers total 25,000,000 pounds of beef.

The farmers are paying from $3.75 to $4.25 per hundred weight for feeding cattle and from $5 to $5.50 per hundred for selling.

Dr. Harshaw's Name Recommended.

The name of Rev. Dr. Harshaw, pastor of the West Pittston Presbyterian church, will be presented at the next session of the synod, which meets at Greensburg this month, for moderator of that body. The Presbytery of Lackawanna at its last meeting urged his name for the position, which the doctor is eminently qualified to fill.

Skinners Eddy Well.

Drilling at the Skinners Eddy oil well is still continued, although the work is proceeding very slowly, owing to the depth of the bore. The drill is now down about 2100 feet, and the strokes must be made carefully to prevent kinking the wire. The curling of the rope would cause it to catch in the tubing and the drill would not fall to the bottom.

Letter to Hiram Bull.

Towanda, Pa.

Dear Sir: Here are two paints that are sold at the same price; Devoe and another almost equally known. Six gallons Devoe is as much as twelve of the other, when on

Mr. N. Avery, Delhi, N. Y., painted two houses, both exactly the same size; one with Devoe and one with that other paint. Devoe 6 gallons; the other 12.

There are thousands of just such cases. The houses, being alike, bring out the fact of the paints; one covers twice as much as the other.

It cost $27 to paint Devoe; $54 for the other; as painting costs two or three times as much as the paint.

Go by the name; Devoe.

Yours truly,

F. W. DeVoe & Co.

GOODNOUGH—KUYKENDALL.

Pretty Wedding Celebrated at Windham Last Friday.

A very pretty home wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs.7 curred at the home of Samuel H. Kuydendall of Windham, Wednesday, Sept. 27, when his eldest daughter, Eva, was united in marriage with David Goodnough, formerly of that place. Promptly at 12 o'clock to the strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march played by Miss Nellie Wheaton, the bridal party descended the stairs and wended their way to the parlor, where they stood in a bower of evergreen and flowers with a floral bell suspended above their heads. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Davis in his usual impressive manner.

Katharine Kuykendall, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Theron Russell best man. An elegant wedding breakfast was served to about 40 invited guests. There were many useful and beautiful presents consisting of silverware, table linen, lamps, bedspreads, a handsome suit case, over $100 in money and various other articles.

The bride was attired in a gown of White Sicilian, trimmed with lace and insertion, and the bridesmaid wore cream albatross. At about 4 o'clock they left amid a shower of rice for a short journey. The bride is a member of the M. E. church and greatly beloved by all her acquaintances; the groom is a highly respected and promising young man. They have the best wishes of a host of friends in Windham. They will make their future home in Binghamton.

Fire at State College.

The Sigma Chi fraternity house at State college was badly damaged by fire there one night recently. The blaze got well under way before the arrival of the local fire department, and although a number of students worked hard the fire was not controlled and the house was badly wrecked. Nearly all the furniture and household goods were rescued. Fawkes, half-back on the 'Varsity football eleven, sustained a sprained ankle while leading the student fire brigade.

Small Boy's Bad Tumble.

Master Don Hooley, aged eight years of Troy, met with a severe accident Saturday afternoon. While watching the workmen on the abutments of the new bridge on East Main street he ventured too near the edge and fell 14 feet, breaking his wrist, elbow and upper arm. Two physicians were immediately summoned to dress the fractures.

Child Ate Pills.

The four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Fruit of Elmira found some sugar pills in the house and ate them. The pills contained strychnine, arsenic, corrosive sublimate and iron, the amount of any one of them sufficient to cause death in a child. Despite the work of several physicians who were called as soon as it was known what had happened the child died.

Did Use Few Seeds.

A pure food prosecution in Pottsville showed that in a sample of raspberry jam, the only trace of the raspberry was a few seeds. The rest of the compound was made up of glucose, starch, coal tar coloring and blackberry jam, even the seeds were counterfeited. It seems there is nothing left in those substances to counterfeit but the name.

RESTRICTING MARRIAGES.

New York Homeopaths Wanted All Couples to Be Healthy.

Four Binghamton physicians were in attendance at the annual convention of the Homeopathic Medical society of New York state at Syracuse when it was decided that it was impossible to secure adequate legislation in that state to regulate marriages and prohibit the marriage of unhealthy persons. A committee was appointed at a previous meeting to make a report on the matter of asking the legislature to pass laws compelling all applicants for licenses to undergo a thorough medical examination before they are allowed to enter wedlock.

Secretary H. W. Page of New York city stated that it was impossible to get desirable laws passed to cover this point and that nothing could be done. If such a bill was presented it would undoubtedly be defeated, the legislature believing that the physicians were endeavoring to create business for themselves by compelling all persons to undergo a physical examination.

GREAT BUTTER PRODUCER.

Cow at Fair Gave Over Five Pounds in Forty Eight Hours.

Leonancy, No. 158239 American Jersey Cattle club, owned by J. R. Vannoy and exhibited by F. P. and L. O. Vannoy of East Troy, produced in the butter test at the Bradford county fair at Towanda last week 5.01 pounds of butter in 48 hours. The test was as follows: Wednesday, 42 pounds of milk, Thursday 44 pounds. Composite test showed .05 butter fat.

42 plus 44 is 86 pounds of milk.

86 plus .05 is 4.30 pounds of butter fat.

One-sixth over the Babcock test was allowed by the society.

One-sixth of 4.30 is .71, added to 4.30 is 5.01 pounds of butter.

This cow was taken off pasture and driven over 21 miles in one day to go into this test.

Good Progress at Institute.

The Susquehanna Collegiate Institute under the principalship of Professor T. M. Morrison is making excellent progress since its opening on Sept. 11. New pupils are coming in and a number more have been heard from who are expected within a short time. Pupils of the school who have been seen express themselves as highly pleased at the instruction received and there seems little doubt that Mr. Morrison is making an impression that cannot help but spread throughout this section and add much to the attendance of the well known institution.

Man Who Robbed Morris.

Charles Drowns, who is charged with having robbed F. E. Morris, proprietor of the Sinclair hotel at Pittston of $150 a few weeks ago, has been arrested and is being held in Wilkesbarre. Mr. Morris has preferred charges against him, which he will press. Drowns is now confined in the county jail, where he will be held pending a session of the grand jury. It is said that Drowns is wanted on several charges, among them several cases of larceny from Scranton and Wilkesbarre.
